

Ike Leaves Guam Enroute Back From Korea

How Well Do You Recall Events Of Dec. 7, 1941?

By James Gaffney
and Mac Below

It was Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941.

Life was awakening to its daily routine in Pearl Harbor. Some people were on their way to church—others just arising, but all was generally quiet.

Then the drone of planes reverberated. From Diamond Head the Rising Sun insignia was visible on aircraft as they swooped low in the dastardly attack.

Hours later, when the smoke cleared, the bodies of 350 American soldiers at Hickam Field lay still; the USS California was afire and two other battleships crippled; damage to homes mounted to thousands and civilians suffered heavy casualties.

And tomorrow, Sunday, Dec. 7, 1952—11 years later—we mark the black day on America's calendar. The enemy was defeated and now is our ally. But what happened Dec. 7, 1941 here—and what was the general reaction of the American people?

Determined to learn if the memories of Americans were short—as claimed by many, two staff members of The Daily Record toured the area yesterday, questioning persons about Dec. 7, 1941. And here's what they learned:

Of 19 people queried, 10 recalled very vividly where they were when news came of the Japs' attack, and nine persons realized there was something significant about the date—but couldn't remember what it was. When reminded of Pearl Harbor, the nine with short memories agreed they were cognizant of the event—but couldn't remember where they were when first informed of the strike against America.

But the 10 who could remember were asked "What were you doing when the news of the Japanese attack broke, and what was your reaction?" Here are the answers:

Charles Allen, 632 Bryant St., Stroudsburg—"I was on duty at the time. It was around noon when someone came up to me and told me about it. I was dumbfounded to think our fleet had been knocked to heck." Albert, patrolman for the Stroudsburg police department, served in that capacity since 1939.

MacArthur Claims Plan To End War

New York (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said last night "there is a clear and definite solution to the Korean conflict"—one without "an unduly heavy price in friendly casualties or any increased danger of provoking universal conflict."

Speaking to the National Association of Manufacturers, MacArthur didn't go into details, but he implied he was willing to give his views to President-elect Eisenhower.

Throughout the speech, the former Far East commander made several friendly references to Eisenhower, whom he did not endorse during the recent political campaign.

More than 3,000 persons overflowed the Waldorf Astoria Hotel's grand ballroom to hear MacArthur's address. They interrupted him with applause time after time.

Discussing the Korean situation, MacArthur said: "Our respected President-elect has gone there in search for an honorable end to so tragic a slaughter, and all Americans join in prayer that he may safely pass through the hazards involved and accomplish his self-appointed task with vision and wisdom."

He said also it is "our duty as citizens to rally in firm support of the new administration to help it

No Quick Or Easy Solution To War; Much To Be Done

By Don Whitehead

With Eisenhower Aboard the USS Helena Off Guam (AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower completed a three-day close hand inspection of the Korean War situation last night, flew to Guam today and boarded the heavy cruiser Helena. On the leisurely trip home, he will study the information he gathered.

En route to Pearl Harbor, the cruiser is expected to pick up John Foster Dulles, to be secretary of state in Eisenhower's Cabinet, for a review of the entire Far East problem.

Eisenhower's quest for a "positive and definite" victory formula in Korea had been rapid-fire—and one which he said required time to "digest" the mass of information he had accumulated.

He was confident of ultimate success in the war against the Communists but foresaw no quick or easy solution.

Eisenhower flew from Korea to Guam, arriving at 5:30 a.m. Guam time. A few minutes later he boarded the Helena, with sailors and ship's officers gathered on the deck craning for a glimpse of him.

He was accompanied by Adm. Arthur Radford, Pacific Fleet commander and welcomed aboard by the ship's captain, Capt. Walter L. Dyer.

The Helena pulled away from the dock at 6:30 a.m. and headed eastward. Eisenhower and his party gathered on the deck in mild 82-degree weather—in sharp contrast to the near-zero Korean temperatures they had left little more than eight hours earlier.

Eisenhower was expected to discuss with Dulles the policy his new administration will take in aiding South Korea both economically and militarily.

The general said in a press conference today the South Korean government and people needed outside help in the fight against the Reds.

The Helena was expected to dock in Pearl Harbor Dec. 11. It was believed the general would spend two or three days there before flying back to his New York headquarters.

In three dramatic, action-packed days, the President-elect had viewed the war up close, talked to high military advisers and men in the ranks and with officials of the Korean Republic. He left behind him:

One—A statement that, while there was no easy solution to the Korean problem, "much can be done, much will be done" to improve the situation—without spreading the war to the Chinese Communist mainland.

Two—A promise that the South Korean Army will get "bigger and better" during his administration, and that economic aid will continue.

Three—A vastly cheered President Syngman Rhee, described by a spokesman as "more confident than ever" after his talks with the general.

Eisenhower also held private discussions about Formosa with Maj. Gen. William Chase, head of the U. S. military mission to the Chinese Nationalists.

Unarmed and bundled in a parka he traveled by jeep and light plane across razor-edged mountains to within a few miles of the stagnant battlefield.

Then he left at 8:01 last night (6:01 a.m. Friday, EST) as quietly and secretly as he had come Tuesday night.

If the 10, 836-mile trip had inspired a solution of the war that has raged up and down this land of cold and misery for nearly 30 months, he did not immediately say so.

At a press conference in Seoul he said that "we came over to learn. We have no panaceas, no trick ways of settling any problems."

"How difficult it seems to be in a war of this kind," he added, "to work out a plan that would bring a positive and definite victory without possibly running grave risk of enlarging the war."

"There are many limitations on a war of this kind, but this much is certain . . . much can be done in my opinion to improve our positions—much will be done."

He conferred three times with President Rhee—at U. S. Eighth Army headquarters, again on the battlefield and at Rhee's hillside mansion near Seoul.

The two exchanged notes which were not made public immediately. Eisenhower told the press, "I am far from a defeatist . . . Freedom is bound to be successful."

The visit skyrocketed hopes of soldiers bogged down in the near-zero cold of Korea's third winter of war. Soldier after soldier told correspondents the trip gave them hope that if a way to peace can be found, Eisenhower would find it.

On his way home, the new American president expected to meet other members of his staff and

Mrs. Eisenhower Relieved To Hear Ike Left Korea

New York (AP)—Like any woman at vigil's end, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower gave a quick gasp of relief yesterday when she learned her husband was safely out of Korea.

"I'm glad that everything's all right and he's coming home," she said through a secretary.

Mrs. Eisenhower heard the news on a radio broadcast at 7 a.m., then she settled down in a housecoat in front of the television set in hopes of seeing her husband on the screen.

She did not see reporters but issued a statement in which she said:

"I am very grateful for the prayers that have been offered by people all over the world for the safety of the general and those who are accompanying him."

Ike's Visit Makes Soldiers Happy

Tokyo (AP)—The Korean visit of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower dropped a welcome present in the laps of soldiers on leave in Japan.

The Army blackouts on Eisenhower's movements sharply cut the flow of planes to and from Korea. Many soldiers on rest and recreation leave in Japan couldn't get back to Korea.

The regular leave is five days. Some of the soldiers has as much as four days added to their leave.

study the first-hand reports he had received "to be better able to pursue a policy of supporting freedom," he told the news conference.

American industry, he said, would be "always in shape" to give that support.

He promised to give Korea economic help for a long time to come, but gave no inkling of his military plans.

Eisenhower began his secrecy-shrouded flight before dawn Saturday. He slipped out of New York and drove under cover of darkness to Mitchell Field Air Base on Long Island.

Members of his 16-man official party met him there. Included were Charles E. Wilson of Detroit, who will be the new secretary of defense; Gen. Omar N. Bradley chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and Herbert Brownell of New York, who will be attorney general in the new Republican administration.

The general's sleek Constellation carried a double crew of 22 so a rested hand would always be at every control. The President-elect did not leave the plane until it reached Iwo Jima.

At the other stops all members of the party remained in the official plane as did those in a second Constellation which carried members of the press. Crews hastily filled the tanks. Then the planes climbed hastily back into the skies.

Eisenhower arrived in Korea at 7:57 p.m. Tuesday to begin three days of conferences which could be vital to Korea—and the world.

He visited combat units and talked for many hours with Gen. Mark W. Clark, U.S. and United Nations Far East Commander, and Gen. James A. Van Fleet, chief of the U.S. Eighth Army in Korea.

His trips to combat units did not carry him into the front lines. The military and secret service were careful to see that he did not go beyond division headquarters—usually three or four miles from the actual battlefield—for security reasons. The greatest risks appeared to be in the many flights in small planes over Korea's jagged mountains.

PSEA Committee Calls For $200 Boost In Teacher Pay

Harrisburg, (AP)—A $200 cost-of-living salary increase was asked yesterday by Pennsylvania's organized school teachers.

The legislative committee of the Pennsylvania State Education Association made the recommendation in a report that will likely be adopted by the parent organization at its convention here Dec. 29-30-31.

Estimated cost of the salary boost is 12½ million dollars.

In a recent report to be presented to the convention, the committee said:

"The estimated average salary in Pennsylvania this year is $3,504. Thousands of teachers with many years of service in this commonwealth are this year receiving $3,100 which is below an acceptable income standard in the present economy."

Washington, (AP)—Mrs. David Willock Wallace, mother-in-law of President Truman, died at the White House yesterday after an illness of several months. She was 90 years old.

Mrs. Truman was at the bedside when her mother died at 12:30 p.m. An aide said the President got there "just at the end."

The White House said the President and Mrs. Truman will leave here by train at 6:30 p.m. today enroute to Independence, Mo., for the funeral.

The funeral is tentatively scheduled for Monday. It will be strictly private. A presidential aide said the Trumans requested that no flowers be sent.

All presidential engagements for the next several days are cancelled.

Maj. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, the White House physician, a nurse and a maid were in attendance when Mrs. Wallace died. Death was attributed to the infirmities of old age. The specific cause was given as cerebral thrombosis.

Mrs. Truman is the eldest of Mrs. Wallace's four children. Three sons also survive.

A spritely, keen-minded woman, Mrs. Wallace took little part in the brilliant White House scene during the momentous years of her son-in-law's seven-year tenure as President. She avoided personal publicity and remained quietly in the background.

Aides said she took a lively interest in family events, however.

Right Of Drunk To Talk Back To Cop Upheld

Louisville, Ky., (AP)—Quarterly Court Judge John A. Fulton yesterday upheld the right of a drunk to give an arresting officer a piece of his mind.

"A drunk always gives an officer backtalk, that's sort of a drunk's constitutional right," the judge commented in filing away a breach of peace charge against William L. Riggs, 35.

Riggs, however, was fined $25 on a drunkenness charge.

Officers said Riggs talked back to them when they arrested him and three companions at a night

Busy Pastor Wins Prize, Buys Plane

Rev. Alexander Crossan Jr., pastor of the Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Church, is the owner of a two-passenger Bearwing Sportster airplane purchased to expedite matters in connection with post-graduate work at Princeton Theological Seminary and his pastoral duties.

Back of the purchase of the plane is the cash prize of $1,000 awarded the young clergyman last June at the seminary. The prize was awarded for the thesis written by Rev. Crossan in his senior year on the general subject of "Fellowship in the New Testament." Students with certain grade averages are permitted to enter the competition, it was said. The prize is given for scholarship purposes. He received the first quarterly check last week.

Rev. Mr. Crossan, who was graduated last June at the seminary, plans to enter the foreign mission field and is studying for the degree of Doctor of Theology in order to teach in a theological seminary in the foreign field.

In addition to his extra studies at the seminary, Rev. Crossan also teaches a class in Greek. This requires five days of work a week. To motor to the seminary from his Middle Smithfield home requires an average of three and half hours. The same distance is covered by plane in one hour and a quarter, thus affording more time for his church pastoral duties, he said.

Legion Volunteers As Firing Squad

Fontana, Calif., (AP)—This community's American Legion Post 262 volunteered yesterday to serve as a firing squad for convicted atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

Commander Pete Hickey said the members are fighting mad at being mailed a circular urging that the Rosenbergs be spared. The couple was convicted of sending atomic secrets to Russia. They are scheduled to be executed Jan. 12.

Baltimore city police had Virgil Toney and Nick Derembis, both 41, in custody overnight without knowing they were two of the fugitive convicts.

The two were picked up and fined for trespassing on railroad property. It was only while they were trying to raise the $25 fines that the FBI was called in and identified them.

The 10th convict still at large is Andrew L. White, 31. The others had been recaptured in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Bey's Adviser Slain

Tunis, Tunisia (AP)—Assassins who struck from a motor car yesterday killed Farhat Hached, 39, Tunisia's top labor leader, an outspoken advocate of independence and a trusted adviser of the Bey of Tunis.

Republicans Cheer Trip

Washington, (AP)—Republican forecasts of attempts to end the Korean War stymied yesterday that President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower is returning from a dramatic three-day visit to the Korean battle zone.

Members of Congress were generally cordial in their reaction to Eisenhower's statement that without promising any panaceas, "much can be done . . . much will be done to improve our position" in Korea.

Several Democrats cautioned, however, that the road to peace may provide a long ordeal.

Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho) told newsmen: "As Gen. Eisenhower is an authority on military technique, he should be in a position to recommend action which will force some kind of showdown in Korea."

"Obviously, he received that mandate from the American people on Nov. 4."

Sen. Walker (R-Idaho) commented:

"I am sure the information obtained by the general will be of such a nature that his advisers and the Congress can work out some way to end this stalemate."

Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore), who bolted the Republican party during the heat of the presidential election campaign, scoffed at Eisenhower's statements on his trip as "just warmed-over political potatoes."

On the Democratic side, Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota said he agrees with Eisenhower that there are no easy remedies for the Korean War.

Sen. Hunt (D-Wyo.), a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the only beneficial result he could see from Eisenhower's trip was that it might be a "moral builder" for the troops there.

Lee Tracy's Mother Dies

West Chester, (AP)—Mrs. Rachel G. Tracy, mother of stage screen and television actor, Lee Tracy, died yesterday at the Marshall Square Hospital.

Middle East Ambassador Called Home

Washington, (AP)—Secretary Acheson has ordered the roving ambassador to the Middle East, Edwin A. Locke Jr., to return home immediately to explain his public statements on administration foreign policy.

It was learned yesterday that Locke's recall was decided on after he made a speech in Beirut, Lebanon, publicly calling for more American grants and loans to Middle East countries.

State Department policy call for only limited dollar aid and an emphasis on "Point Four" projects led by American farm, health and technical experts.

Locke, who directs all American economic and technical aid to Middle East countries, is expected back next week.

Before his diplomatic assignment in November 1951, he was a vice president of the Chase National Bank in New York. He is 42 years old and a native of Boston.

Ex-Federal Man Indicted

Washington, (AP)—A federal grand jury yesterday indicted Jack Cowart, former Agriculture Department official, on charges of taking pay for exerting his official influence.

Atty. Gen. McGranery, who announced the indictment, said it also named Tom Foster and Jack Motley, both of Center, Tex., charging that they "aided and abetted in the compensation to Cowart."

The indictment was returned at nearby Alexandria, Va.

Cowart was accused of receiving a stock certificate for 163 shares of stock in the Baton Rouge Warehouse Company, operating a plant near Center, Tex., as compensation for services rendered the company when he was assistant to the administrator of the Production and Marketing Administration in the Agriculture Department.

Cowart is now in federal prison, serving an 18-month sentence in another case. He was convicted last April on a charge of accepting payment from a private firm to help it recover a claim against the government.

Fire Destroys Mail In Car At Bethlehem

Bethlehem, (AP)—A fire raced through a mail car at a Reading Railroad siding here yesterday destroying several thousand letters and packages.

The blaze was fought for nearly two hours before firemen brought it under control. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Packages and letters for the Bethlehem area were unloaded from the car before the fire started.

The remaining mail, destined for other local communities, was destroyed in the blaze.

General MacArthur

fulfill its pledge to restore to the nation prosperity "based upon sound rather than illusory considerations."

MacArthur, ousted from his Far East post by President Truman and now chairman of the board of Remington Rand, Inc., said the present course in Korea was leading toward a world war.

"There has been a material change in conditions from those of 20 months ago when I left the scene of action," he said, "and the solution then available and capable of success is not now entirely applicable."

"A present solution involves basic decisions which I recognize as improper for public disclosure or discussion, but which in my opinion can be executed without either an unduly heavy price in friendly casualties or any increased danger of provoking universal conflict."

"On the other hand, our present course, with the mounting hatreds which it inspires, is inevitably leading toward a world war. No greater fallacy exists than by those who for varying reasons tell you otherwise."

MacArthur's proposals 20 months ago included bombing of Red China bases in Manchuria, blockading the Red China coast, and utilizing Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese forces stationed on Formosa.

Rev. Campbell Turned To Ministry While Studying Banking; Lover Of Sports, Music

From the world of banking to the world of God might well be defined as an advance from riches to irrevocable wealth, and the stride was taken in 1941 by the pastor of Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, Rev. Ernest T. Campbell.

The call to preach came to Rev. Campbell while working for the Guaranty Trust Co., New York City, and attending New York University Night School, majoring in credit and finance. The affable minister had graduated from New York's High School of Commerce and cast an appreciable eye toward a career in banking. But the desire of association with the ministry was stronger than that held by banking institutions, and Bob Jones College, Cleveland, Tenn., soon had another student.

Foundation for ministerial training, the Bob Jones educational institute has since become Bob Jones University, and currently is located in Greenville, S.C.

And it was at Bob Jones College that Rev. Campbell met his wife, also a student there. She is the former Frances Elizabeth Parker, of Fort Payne, Ala., who majored in home economics at the college.

From the Tennessee college the New York City native entered Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J., in 1945, receiving his B.D. degree in 1948.

During the following year Rev. Campbell worked for his Master of Theology and supplied the pulpit of the Portland and Mt. Bethel Presbyterian Churches simultaneously. Earlier experience came while attending Bob Jones College, for Rev. Campbell substituted as chaplain in the Centennial Seminary of Princeton, N.J., will be the honored guests.

On Sunday night, each of the Presbyterian churches of Monroe County will have youth in attendance at the East Stroudsburg church. At 6 p. m. a buffet lunch is to be served. After the lunch, the program will be placed in charge of the Seminary National Missions Team.

While the team is in East Stroudsburg they will be entertained at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. James Kester, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Walters and Miss Ruth Flory.

Members of the Dirigo Class will be in charge of the Nursery for small children during the worship service and the ushers are Elmer Goucher, Claude Miller, Fred L. Scheller and George Shick.

Robert Kaiser, of the Gap and Carl Kaiser, of Easton, made a trip to Philadelphia Tuesday to see their father, William Kaiser, who is a patient in Ward O-70, University of Penna. Hospital. They report that Mr. Kaiser must remain there for daily radical treatments. The men left the city at 6:30 p. m. and the Gap was reached at 1:30 a. m. next morning; slow progress being made through the heavy snow and sleet.

Guests at the Stanley Sipthorn home during the weekend were Mr. Sipthorn's niece, Mrs. Marian Seittermann and James Britham, both of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Edythe Giebe was in Stroudsburg Monday afternoon to attend the meeting of the Crippled Children's Association.

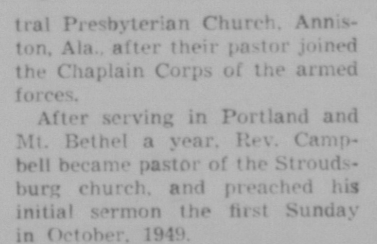

Mrs. Donald Gilpin, of Stroudsburg and Mrs. Joseph Wheeler, of Washington, D.C., were recent callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Heitler Jr. Mrs. Wheeler is the sister of "Bobby" Westbrook, The Record's social editor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ratasitz and daughter, of New Hyde Park, N. Y., spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baumann.

Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hartshorn were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Clair Smith and daughter, Connie Lou and Georgeanne, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hartshorn and son Gary, Mr. and Mrs. George Hartshorn, Mary Shiffer, Lucille Giltman, Horace Hartshorn, Anne Mae Hartshorn and Charles Landis.

Rev. Ernest T. Campbell

His association locally has since become renowned. His ardent enthusiasm for sports has gained what he terms "a notorious reputation" as a fan of the New York Giants baseball team. And seldom can you stop anywhere to inquire from him of the schedule of sports dominating a sportsman's fancy on that occasion—for the listing of athletic events generally is in his pocket.

Rev. Campbell admits partiality towards the Rangers hockey team and expresses a particular liking for professional basketball, following the teams into engagements.

Only 29 years old, the Presbyterian minister has taken a prominent place in religious and civic affairs. He presently is a member of the Community Church Council board of directors in the county.

Mrs. Campbell taught home economics in Belvidere, N.J. High School while her husband served the Portland-Mt. Bethel charge, and spent one year teaching in Stroudsburg High School after the couple located here.

Rev. Campbell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Campbell, reside in New York City.

Sacred Music Planned For Advent Service

In celebration of the Advent season, the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church plans a service devoted to sacred music at 7:30 p. m. Sunday. Ernest Michelfelder, organist-director, announces that the carol service which opens the service will be directed by Miss Betje Goodall. Christmas music will also be the background for the "Christmas Art" which will be presented by means of color slides.

The guest soloist will be Mrs. Frances Hartzell Meredith, who will sing two selections—"I Wonder As I Wander" and "A Star Was His Candle." In addition the Brass Choir of the High School Band of East Stroudsburg, directed by Clement Wiedmeyer, will play a selection. Also there will be music by a double male quartet.

The pastor, Rev. H. C. Eaton, announced that there will be no sermon. However, there will be a reading by Mrs. Dewey Jacoby entitled "Another Boy"—which is the story of the birth in Bethlehem, by Bruce Barton.

The morning service will be broadcast over station WVPO and will open with the processional by the Altar, Chapel and Cherub Choirs. The Altar Choir plans to sing as its anthem, "Behold That Star" and the Chapel Choir, directed by Miss Marguerite Cramer will sing "Through The Ages," a Christmas anthem, and the Cherub Choir, consisting of tiny folk will sing a Christmas song. Rev. Eaton will present as his theme for the sermon "The Carol of the Ages." His children's sermon will be in the form of a poem, "The Littlest Angel."

During the morning worship the kindergarten which cares for the young children will be staffed by Mrs. William Howell and Mrs. Carl Hamill. The flowers will be presented by the Staples family in memory of their parents. Other services in the church will be the Church School at 9:50 a. m. and the Intermediate and Senior Youth Fellowships at 6:30 p. m.

The Lutheran Youth Fellowship of Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, will sponsor the third skating party of the season next Monday night at 7:30 at the Carmen roller rink, Minisink Hills. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the group or at the door of the rink. All members and their friends are invited to attend. Upwards of 100 teen-agers were in attendance at each of the recent skating parties. Pastor Wunder will serve as chaperone.

The public is invited to the chapel which is located one mile from General Hospital on the Minisink Hills Road. William Marshall is the pastor.

George B. Toms, a Christian layman of Philadelphia, will be guest speaker at Hauserville Union Chapel Sunday at 3 p. m. Mr. Toms is the teacher and director of "The Bible Class of the Air," broadcast each Sunday from the Berachah Church, Philadelphia.

Accompanying him will be an instrumental trio, saxophone, accordion and mandolin. The musicians will also take part in the Sunday School at 2 p. m.

"CHARITY" ON CANVAS

A widow and her three hungry children huddling forlornly against the marble column of a church! That's the way one artist portrayed "Charity."

How shall we interpret this tragic scene? Is it symbolic of the down-trodden's faith in the generosity of Christians everywhere? Or is it a bitter study of men's failure to express their religion in acts of love.

The ragged children, asleep after a long and fruitless wait, seem to imply the latter!

Nevertheless, this painting is a bold challenge to Christian stewardship. For the blessed work of the Church, in charity and in the spread of its Gospel, is either limited or expanded by our own outreach of love.

Next Sunday will be Stewardship Sunday in many churches. The physical and spiritual welfare of millions will be at stake when you set your personal goal in weekly giving to the Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Nice to Contemplate

It's pleasant enough to read of proposals by high government officials that we may hope for a series of tax cuts beginning soon after the 83rd Congress sits in Washington in January, but it will take a vast amount of slashing in domestic expenses if the pleasant talk is to bring any relief to the taxpayer.

There is a good possibility that the excess profits tax on corporations will be allowed to lapse next June, or at least be scaled downward, but even that relief is linked to a reduction in Federal expenditures. At the same time there is hope that there may be some slight downward adjustment in personal income taxes, but any substantial savings are not foreseen earlier than 1954.

The individual's best hope for tax relief rests in a tax cut bill to be sponsored by Rep. Daniel Reed, New York Republican, which would advance the effective date of tax reduction from next Dec. 31 to June 30. If enacted, it would in effect give taxpayers a 5½ per cent cut in their 1953 taxes.

But when we look at the Federal budget to be submitted in January, we have a strong feeling that our hopes of any tax reductions before 1954 are far from encouraging. The budget for fiscal 1954—starting July 1, 1953—calls for around $80 billions, and while the incoming Eisenhower administration has promised to use the axe lavishly on the budget, it will take some healthy swings to bring it down to a point where we could cut taxes and still stay within a sound economic policy.

We have the grim commitment of the American foreign program which stands in the way of the express Republican intention to reduce taxes. And the bulk of President Truman's budget is represented by expenditures for the overseas program to which Congress is substantially committed.

The foreign aid and rearmament program is in a stretch-out not anticipated a year or two years ago. Senator Byrd has expressed hope that the present level of expenditures can be reduced by around $10 billion in fiscal 1954, but other sources close to the military and foreign aid programs are less optimistic.

The economic effects, not only in this country but among our allies in the hot and cold wars, of drastic and sudden reductions in the programs to which the United States is committed must be carefully calculated. Cuts probably can be achieved without impairing the effectiveness of our program, and that would make possible a gradual reduction in taxes. But to take too hopeful a view would be wishful thinking. There is no magic formula.

Our Changing Times

In November, last year, the CIO Steel workers and the steel companies began sparring over a new contract. In December, the union threatened a Jan. 1 strike.

So President Truman made a deal with the union leaders to hold up the strike while the government put the heat on the companies. In April, when a contract still was unsigned, the strike threat was renewed.

This time, Mr. Truman, making his own law, seized the steel mills.

In June, the Supreme Court vetoed the seizure. So the strike went on. It lasted 53 days, ending just in time for the settlement to be announced at the Democratic convention.

This strike caused endless hardship on steel workers and many others. It was an economic jolt to many small businesses in steel areas. And it was nationwide in scope.

Still, Mr. Truman steadfastly refused to use the Taft-Hartley Law, prescribed by Congress as a means of preventing strikes which threaten the national safety.

Wednesday, Mr. Truman invoked the Taft-Hartley Law to stop a strike of steel workers at the Dunkirk plant of the American Locomotive Co. He said he did this because the strike would "imperil the national safety" if it continued.

Thus, it would seem, in the White House view, a one-company strike is a greater "peril" than an industry-wide strike.

The Korean war raged all last winter, spring and summer. The national safety was at stake in all those months. But the Taft-Hartley Law was an election issue then. Now it isn't.

The Real News Newsreel — Dr. Leonora Miron, of the University of Georgia, announces that extensive experiments have shown that mice like liquor. They don't know enough to stop before they are drunk, and baby mice born to such boozing mice become heavy drinkers. This confirms our own experiments, a high note of which came when a mouse which had had a few drinks on the house turned to a sober companion and demanded, "Are you a mouse or a MAN?"

We had a lot of trouble conducting our tests. Every time we left some liquor in a saucer in the cellar somebody beat the mice to it. Once we baited a trap with a dry martini. Know what? The mouse took it and immediately kicked the blazes out of the trap, broke all the cellar windows, chewed the lock off the liquor closet and attacked our cat. We hadn't made it extra dry because we heard about a neighbor who tried this on a mouse, which upset the furnace, jumped head first through the steel wall of a deep freeze unit and used abusive language to the police.

Once we tried a rye on the rocks. The mouse took one snifter and became very boisterous, grabbing a rat and making it sing tenor in a quartette of rodents giving out with "Sweet Adeline." Did you ever try an experiment with beer? Yeah. Unsuccessful. Mouse took one look at the demi-tasse beer glass being

YULE 'LOG' THE WHOLE WORLD'S WAITING FOR

Sunday School Lesson

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
Scripture: Matthew 13.

All through the years parents and teachers have tried, by telling stories, to show children what is right and what is wrong. Most youngsters are bright enough to understand the moral without having it pointed out to them.

Even crime stories in motion pictures, over radio and television (which we deplore because they are often brutalizing and frightening) always end with the good overcoming the bad—the worthy winning over the evil.

Jesus, the Great Teacher, strove to teach His listeners by stories which are called parables. They were simple stories about happenings in the everyday life of that period, but they conveyed His message if the hearers did not always "get the point," or, if they did, refused to take it to heart.

In our lesson Jesus went out of a house near Capernaum, and sat by the sea side. Probably some one saw Him sitting there and passed the word along, and multitudes went to Him. So great was the crowd that Jesus stepped into a boat moored nearby and talked from it.

He told them the story of a man who went forth to sow seeds. Now some of the seed fell by the wayside where fowls came and ate them up; some fell on stony places where there was little earth to nourish them; they sprang up, indeed, but, not having roots reaching down into good earth, they withered and died when the sun came up. Others fell among thorns, which sprang up quickly and choked them.

Some, however, fell into good ground, where they grew and flourished and yielded a good harvest.

Jesus' disciples came to Him and asked why He spoke to the people in parables, and He answered them that to them was be answering a call beyond the scope of duty if He doesn't ask to be excused on the ground he hates to function on roller skates on a revolving floor and is inexperienced in hunting doves on a tightwire.

"I've Got Sixpence," the new Van Druen play, left this writer pretty bored. . . . Adlai Stevenson visited the White House this week and had a pleasant time meditating on his escape. . . . Boris Karloff has returned from Europe, glad to be home for Yuletide, which reminded us of a scene in a Fifth Avenue department store the week before Christmas some years ago. . . . A child, who seemed a little frightened of the store Santa, was being comforted by a smiling gent, whose amazingly soft manner with kids soon pacified the youngster. . . . You could have knocked us over with a copy of "Arsenic and Old Lace" when we recognized the man as Karloff! . . . Bishop Sheen's video talk this week was on the theory of relativity and we will bet he is the only man on earth who could do it and hold the television audience.

Why all the criticism of the award of the Labor post to Mr. Durkin, an official of the Plumbers Apprentices Union? . . . Have not the Republicans claimed all along that the first job was to repair the leaks and open the drains? . . . Have you heard about the Commie in a high government job who refused to quit unless he got a guarantee of a higher post at more money? . . . A Caesarian operation was telecast over a national network the other night. . . . We may ultimately read a newspaper item that "Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So are the proud parents of a coast-to-coast telecast." . . . And a remark, "He's a father," may bring the reply, "Yeah? What channel?" . . . Add smiles: As phoney as a video or radio professional comedian's blessing. . . . "The Seven Year Itch" is such a hit that its producers may enjoy a five-year tickle. . . . How about that Bronx G. I. who has been changed into a woman now joining the Yodlers? . . . Where were the New Yorkers in that fight in Washington against the flooding of newsstands with smut magazines? . . . The Indian truce resolution has been passed by U. N. and provides that in case of a tie, when the four-man commission to handle the prisoner-release issue takes over, an umpire shall decide the matter. . . . This will bring the cry, "Kill the ump!" into world diplomacy for the first time in history. . . . The commission is to be made up of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Sweden and Switzerland, thus making it almost certain that a tie is about the best U. N. can hope for. . . . The umpire must be named soon and he will given the understanding to know the mysteries, but to the majority of His hearers "seeing they see not; and hearing they heed not, neither do they understand."

In other words, some people were like the seeds that were devoured by fowls; some were like seeds that fell on poor soil, because their hearts would not give the proper nourishment to what they heard. And there were they who listened without understanding or interest in what the speaker had to say.

Those, like the disciples, who looked at Christ and saw Him for what He was; who heard His words and meditated upon them so that they understood Him, were the good seeds that brought forth a plentiful harvest.

"Who hath ears to hear, let him hear," said Jesus.

His second parable was about a man who sowed his field with good seeds, but while he slept—tired from his labors—an enemy came and sowed tares (weeds) among the good seeds. When the seeds grew, the weeds and the good grain were mixed, and his servants asked what they should do. Their master answered that they would let both grow to maturity, then they would gather the tares and burn them; and they would harvest the good grain and store it in the barns.

Further Jesus said, "The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field. It is the smallest of all seeds, yet it would eventually grow into a great tree in the branches of which birds would lodge."

Also, the kingdom of God is like leaven which a woman took, hid in a measure of meal, till the whole was leavened. Anyone who has made bread or seen it made knows how a small cake of yeast will make a whole panful of dough rise and become light to be fashioned into loaves of nourishing bread.

Later, when the multitude had gone away He explained what He meant to the disciples. He told them further that the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant, seeking pearls. When he found one of great price, he would sell all that he had and buy the one perfect one.

Or, it was like a net that was cast into the sea, gathering into it every kind of fish. Men would drag it to shore, gather the good fish and throw the bad away.

"So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just, and shall cast them into the furnace of fire."

"Have ye understood all these things?" asked the Lord, and "they said unto Him, yea, Lord."

When Jesus had finished His discourse, He went into the synagogue in Nazareth and taught there. The people present, who had known Him from infancy, were astonished, and said, "Whence hath this man, this wisdom, and these mighty works?"

Memory Verse: "Whence hath this Man this wisdom, and these mighty works?"—Matthew 13:54.

Government Becomes Determining Factor In Labor Relations; Secretary A Nonentity

These Days — By George Sokolsky

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

The theory of collective bargaining is that the employer and representatives of the employees sit down to bargain over wages, hours, and other terms of employment until a meeting of the minds is reached. The "employer" in this sense, is the actual management of an enterprise; the "representatives of the workers" are labor union officials usually related to the particular enterprise or local labor union heads.

To many labor leaders, collective bargaining on this basis has been regarded as unsatisfactory because the local labor leaders are considered as capable of dealing with great matters; further, the trend in labor organizations has been, wherever possible, to deal with questions on an industry-wide basis rather than with particular enterprises.

The professionalization of labor union management has progressed since the NRA days, so that the local business manager of the union or a leader who has come up from the ranks is now being replaced or surrounded by men whose business in life is to work in labor union and who regard such work as a profession. They approach labor problems not from the standpoint of the worker employed in a particular enterprise in a particular locality, but from the standpoint of overall labor strategy in the effort to obtain a larger share of the economy for the worker.

The NRA was a device to abolish collective bargaining by substituting a government agency as a determining arbiter between a union and a trade association. After the NRA was declared unconstitutional, the policy of the Administration was not to revert to collective bargaining but to find another device by which the government would remain as the controlling factor in labor relations. The Wagner Act was passed and the National Labor Relations Board was established.

The government, under this board, became a strong factor in labor settlements. During the war, the wage board and a few other agencies of government assumed final powers in reference to wages, hours and working conditions. Some unions, such as John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers, resisted the government's policy of a Fascist control over work.

The power of the government to seize plants, exercised 71 times during the Roosevelt and Truman regimes, gave the Administration a weapon which eliminated collective bargaining, because precisely how can anyone bargain with the political power of the state?

As a matter of fact, the only industrialist who effectively challenged this power was Sewell Avery of Montgomery Ward and the only labor leader has been John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers. Generally, the Administration has had its way in labor matters.

It can be said correctly that the C.I.O. has been a dominant element in the formulation of labor policies in the Truman administration, but that is because Mr. Truman preferred it that way.

The point is that the government is the determining factor in labor relations.

Within the government, a number of labor experts have developed as a professional group with great authority and power. The original National Labor Board was a Communist infiltrated body, dominated by men out of the Harold Ware cell. This is not true of the present NLRB which has settled down to an ordinary bureaucracy. A group of professors in universities have become acknowledged labor experts and are called in by various labor departments.

The Secretary of Labor has been reduced to a nonentity in the government labor set-up. The first Secretary of Labor was William B. Wilson, of the National Union of Miners. He was appointed by Woodrow Wilson. Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover appointed James J. Davis of the Amalgamated Association Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of America Union. Hoover subsequently appointed William N. Doak, editor of "Railroad Trainmen," and Franklin D. Roosevelt put in that office Frances Perkins, a social worker. It was during Mrs. Perkins' regime that Roosevelt organized various agencies which deprived the democracy of its proper functions. Truman's first Secretary was a lame-duck Senator, L. B. Schwellenbach, who did not serve long; he then appointed a Boston politician with A. F. of L. affiliations, Maurice J. Tobin. The Department has been given to the American Federation of Labor, with the appointment of Martin P. Durkin, of the Plumbers and Pipe-Fitters.

On Broadway

The Broadway Line

Despite scripting surgery and other obstacles, Bettie Davis' "Two's Company" has a $600,000 advance.

The revue has only 151 backlogs. . . . New week's Valentine for "The Seven Year Itch" funding. . . . The cast plays with the assurance of people who know they have steady work. . . . The 1-2 non-fiction best-sellers are "Tallulah" and "The Holy Bible." Quite a contrast. . . . Marilyn Monroe's proclamation: "I am completely absorbed by the study of the world's great literature." G'wan! Joe D. must be more fun. . . . Why this sign backstage of a theater (on 43rd Street): "Don't forget The Blackmail Performance Tomorrow Night!" It was for Actors Equity. . . . They might need Equity members one day if the Going Gets Rough. . . . The smash songhit, "You Belong to Me," often reminds you of the classic, "In a Persian Market."

The theatre has undergone a transformation. For the first time in two years—straight plays outnumber musical clicks. . . . "What's My Line?" collected some mighty old occupations this week: A professional knife-thrower, dog-house manufacturer and hearing-pickler. The amazing panel quiz-ards guessed 'em all with finger-snaps ease. . . . Gad! A current movie mag offers articles full of admiration for stars. Written by their press agents! . . . Jane Russell in the "Montana Belle" movie rides a horse. Lucky horse.

Film studios are inkling numerous teevy and stage newcomers. Explanation: It's cheaper to buy a new face than save an old one. . . . The nasal squeals of teevy's hill-billy yodelers are no substitute for music. . . . There's no biz like it: Joni James was unknown seven months ago. Her platter of "Why Don't You Believe Me?" is now one of the spinning wonders. Has sold over 750,000 copies. . . . Vivian Vance and Bill Frawley, the supporting playmates in "I Love Lucy," help make it so very comical. . . . Doris Day declared: "Wouldn't it be fun to work together with your husband?" . . . No.

Patti Andrews' platter of "You Blew Me a Kiss" is a breezy ballad. . . . The spectacular Atlantic storm in the "Plymouth Adventure" film is realistic enough to make you mal-da-merish. . . . They don't attract much fanfare but the most profitable tomes are cookbooks. Suggested title for a new one: "What's Cooking?" . . . The season's scarcity of musicals will be slightly alleviated soon by two upcoming song-and-doll shows: "My Sister Eileen" and "Hazel Flagg." . . . A crowd-collector is the pooch that strolls along Madison and 37th every afternoon. Chews gum. . . . Hollywood's Steve Cochran announced: "Women are so different. . . . Master, the material is the same—the dimensions are different. . . . Helen Hayes' emoting via "Omnibus" had her customary shimmer, the greasepaint realm never had a more talented queen. (Curtsy).

Robert Carson's novel, "The Magic Lantern," is an unusual Hollywood tome: More of a portrait than a caricature. . . . "The Brave Don't Cry" movie concerns a mine disaster. It has no musical score. The "musical" background is provided by the sounds of ticking clocks and dripping water. Imaginative and dramatically effective. . . . The top lookie-cookie was the news photo of Shirley Temple and her bright-eyed hair. First time anybody ever stole a picture from Shirley. . . . The up-and-at-'em type of cinema that catches the red-blooded trade only seems sensible when John Wayne is the star. . . . Danny Thomas flipped: "Television is for idiots." Apparently, he has never witnessed "Omnibus." Bishop Sheen, "Victory at Sea," "Meet the Press" and many other TV-IQ OK programs.

The touring troupe of "Dial 'M' for Murder" should attract a host of coin. Its production cost is only $20,000. . . . Teevy's reprise of the anti-Nazi movie "Tomorrow the World" certified it still packs a topical wallop. . . . Helen O'Connell's purring zing-along of "You're the Only One I Adore" is adorable. . . . Teevy indicates the durability of hoary barbed sketches. Every comedy session offers hundered versions of the old hokum-jokum. . . . The daffy-ditty-dandy, "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus," is getting more network repeats than station identification. Comco's version is clicky.

Hollywood—Marie Wilson slid demurely into our restaurant booth in a whitish outfit that covered her right up to her chin. I asked if she ever tired of all the customary jokes, remarks, and innuendoes about her 38½-inch bosom.

She smiled sweetly, shook her head, and said, "No." But it has been something of a problem on television, she confided. Especially on the filmed recording—the kinescope—seen here shortly after the rest of the nation has viewed her as "My Friend Irma" on CBS-TV Tuesday nights.

Sometimes this capricious reproduction makes you look taller or shorter or fatter or thinner than you are, Marie said. Some times it exaggerates her bosom into looking like a shelf so that once the advertising-agency man—super-boss of the show—warned: "Don't turn your profile."

Miss Wilson remarked that her cigarette sponsor is much stricter than the average TV bank-roller. "They're from the South, and very conservative Baptists. They don't want me to wear any more sweaters. They felt a dress could be just as sexy."

In fact, when the program was launched last January, the producer nixed low necklines for Marie as out of keeping with her role as dumb Irma Peterson. But even Mother Hubbardish suits failed to diminish her contours, she Honeymoons? Out the window!

If young married folks have any sense they will eschew the honeymoon, says Dr. Eustace Chessier, one of Britain's most eminent psychologists.

If honeymoons are a leftover from the old days of marriage by capture, he told an interviewer in his old-fashioned office in London's Harley Street.

"Boy abducted girl," he said, "and didn't dare come back with her till father's rage had cooled." Dr. Chessier has long been one of England's outstanding exponents of the practical approach to marriage and has written several books on the subject.

He does not necessarily decry a very short trip after the wedding, just a couple of days or so. "There is something to be said for a brief holiday during which the partners are freed from all distractions and can get to know each other more thoroughly and intimately than has hitherto been possible," he admitted.

"But far too often these days it proves a hindrance since it in-explained, "so they settled for some nice clothes." Her costumes are designed by RKO's Michael Woulfe, who outfitted her for the money-making movie, "A Girl in Every Port," with Groucho Marx.

Miss Wilson said of television: "I like it, but I haven't found it as much fun as I hope I will later. The hardest part is memorizing so much dialogue. You can't rattle through it; you've got to be right on your toes."

The girl who has made a career of playing dumb memorizes a 60-page script every Monday. The rest of the week she rehearses, with time out on Thursday for a trip to the beauty parlor. Saturdays she sits still for photos and interviews. Sundays she looks over her next script. Tuesday night she does the radio version of "Irma" after a couple of rehearsals.

"They send the script to me ahead of time," Marie said, "but I just don't have the time to look at it."

Bell Announces New Rate Schedules For Stroudsburg Area

Increases Range From 25-75 Cents

New telephone rates filed this week with the Public Utility Commission in Harrisburg will become effective on Sunday, Dec. 7.

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania announced increases ranging from 25 to 75 cents on basic monthly rates for private and business phones here.

Also filed were a minimum ten-cent charge for all coin telephone calls, a minimum ten-cent rate for toll calls and five-cent increases on station-to-station calls up to 150 miles.

Typical new rates for the Stroudsburg exchange will be the following:

Residence phones: Individual—$3.75 (formerly $3.50); two-party—$3.00 (formerly $2.75); four-party—$2.50 (formerly $2.25); multi-party—$2.50 (formerly $2.25).

No change was made in the charge for residence phone extensions. This rate will remain at the old charge of 85 cents per extension phone.

New rates for business phones were filed for the Stroudsburg exchange as follows:

Individual—$6.75 (formerly $6.00); two-party—$5.25 (formerly $4.75); multi-party—$4.75 (formerly $4.25).

There are also various increases in the charges for extension telephones, private branch exchanges, private lines and other supplemental telephone equipment and services.

The rates listed do not include Federal taxes.

The Public Utility Commission authorized a $21,227,000 per year increase for Bell last Tuesday. In so doing, the PUC whacked an approximate 36 per cent from the total increase asked by the telephone company in a request for higher rates put before the commission on Jan. 7, 1952.

Bell had requested a total yearly increase of $33,009,000, including the initiation of the new ten-cent pay booth call.

The company claimed that the big increase was necessary to meet higher costs and continue a construction program which it said was urgently needed to supply new service demands.

Shortly after the PUC had authorized its version of the increase, Pennsylvania Bell President W. D. Gillen said in Philadelphia that "the increase in monthly revenues allowed by the commission is not enough to meet the company's needs."

Gillen pointed out that the increase would net Bell only "$803,936 a month after taxes."

In reducing the proposed increase the PUC upheld, in part, a number of complaints from the State CIO council, Pennsylvania Hotel Association and from the cities of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

A Stroudsburg driver was arrested for improper passing yesterday as a result of an accident which caused $430 damage to three vehicles.

State police of the Stroudsburg sub-station said Craig A. McKay told them he was traveling west on Route 209 when he started to pass another car.

Midway through the attempted pass, McKay saw a third car, operated by Thomas E. Lehman, 281 Reynolds St., Kingston, approaching.

McKay applied his brakes. His sedan went into a skid, swung around and hit both the other cars.

McKay was charged with improper passing, a traffic violation, by State police. He gave his address as 216 Main St., Stroudsburg.

East Borough PTA Offers Insurance Plan To Parents

The East Stroudsburg Parent-Teachers Association this week mailed out letters to hundreds of parents with children enrolled in the borough school system, defining a new low-cost insurance policy for students.

Basically the policy, one of a type designed especially for schools, covers medical expenses up to $2,000 incurred by any one of seven types of accident in which the student might be involved.

These are the seven accident types covered by the policy as outlined in a brochure mailed with the PTA letter:

One—Accidents which happen while the child is enroute between home and school.

Two—Accidents happening while the student is within the school building or on the school grounds.

Three—Accidents occurring while enroute between school and home.

Four—Accidents while on a school-sponsored trip (band trips, athletic events, glee club trips, educational field trips, etc.).

Fifth—Accidents which happen while on a required field trip.

Sixth—Accidents occurring while engaged in athletic contests including practice for games but not including football, providing the practice is being supervised by local school officials.

Seventh—Accidents happening while being transported as a member of an athletic team, band, glee club, etc.

Stroudsburg Man Injured In Collision

Delaware Water Gap — Raymond Cooper, 26, of N. Third St., Stroudsburg, was admitted to General Hospital yesterday afternoon following an accident involving his car, a truck-trailer and a bus at the intersection of Routes 402 and 611 in Water Gap.

Police Chief Fred Decker said the accident occurred at 3:15 p. m. when Cooper attempted to pull into Route 611 at the traffic light intersection of the two routes. Cooper was in the process of entering the route when the two larger vehicles approached the intersection from opposite directions.

A Martz bus, operated by Charles Patrick Barbieri, 252 N. Washington St., Wilkes-Barre, was traveling east on Route 611.

At the same time Bernard J. Charnogursky of Dunmore, Pa., was operating an empty tractor-trailer westward on 611.

According to Chief Decker, Charnogursky applied his brakes to avoid hitting Cooper's vehicle head-on.

The huge tractor-trailer "jack-knifed." The right front side of the tractor sidwiped the left front side of the bus very lightly, causing little damage, Chief Decker said.

The rear of the trailer, however, knocked Cooper's light car off the road and into a nearby driveway. The car was nearly demolished, Decker said.

Cooper was taken to the hospital in an ambulance. He was admitted for treatment of a broken right rib and cuts on the face and forehead.

Estimated damage to the tractor-trailer was $400; to the bus, approximately $50.

Red Cross Volunteers Give 1,000 Hours Of Service To Projects During November

Almost 100 Monroe County volunteers gave some 1,000 hours of service during the month of November to the people of Monroe County. It was reported at last night's meeting of the board of directors at the Red Cross headquarters on Court House Square.

The visit of the bloodmobile and the hospital were the two major items on the schedule of service, but other services were less routine.

A five-day-old baby was rushed for specialized treatment at the Children's Hospital in Philadelphia; motor corps volunteer collected the bottles from doctor's offices and drug stores in the recent diabetes detection campaign sponsored by the Medical Society.

Meanwhile, the Gray Ladies continued to serve on a seven-day-a-week schedule, meeting the extra-curricular needs of patients and visitors at the hospital, serving as receptionists at the bloodmobile; the canteen volunteers served snacks to all donors and visiting personnel at the blood bank; registered nurses, 11 of them for 94 hours, helped with examination of prospective donors; nurses aides served both at the hospital and at the blood bank; staff aides confined appointments and registered donors.

Adding to the volunteers this month were 10 members of the Legion Auxiliary of Barrett who gave 56 hours when the blood visit to Barrett was held.

The local chapter has been equally busy on the home service front. Mrs. Ida B. Kunkle, executive secretary, reported with long-distance telephone calls on behalf of service men and their families—providing coal in emergency situations during the cold weather.

After an appeal for bedding for a local family in distress, Mrs. Kunkle reported she had been offered 14 beds and mattresses, and in some cases the linen, blankets and pillows to go with them. Only two beds were needed, she said, but lists have been made of the other 12, which will be available for future needs.

Mrs. Kunkle said that, while all emergency needs are met at once, by purchase if necessary, in a neighboring community like Monroe County people are always willing to fill in a need from their own over-supply.

The money thus saved will be needed, she said, during the Christmas season, since she has been notified that some service allotments will be delayed, and the chapter wishes to be able to fill in the gap for the families of servicemen at home.

LeRoy Mikel, blood donor chairman, was warm in his praise of the Barrett visit of the bloodmobile when 141 pints were collected. The Veterans of Foreign Wars are going all out, he said, for the coming blood bank visit, December

Meeting Up With Skunks One Of Greatest Surprises That Greeted Pioneer Explorers

By Leonard Randolph

One of the outstanding discoveries made by early explorers on the North American continent was the lowly skunk.

This was the contention of Dr. John Bakeless, author of one of the most thorough and authoritative books ever published in this country about early American explorers, in an off-the-cuff address Thursday night before members of the Dutch Treat Club.

In an interview at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, where the dinner meeting was held, Dr. Bakeless pointed out that explorers who landed on the continent had several unpleasant surprises waiting for them as well as the overwhelming richness of the land, the abundance of game animals and a large supply of fruits and vegetables.

Early journals, according to the speaker, are liberally larded with the explorers' accounts of "first meetings with skunks" and their reactions to the animal.

Needless to say, most of the comments were strong. But then so is the power of the skunk—especially to the uninitiated.

Dr. Bakeless recalled one minor incident which he had turned up during years of research. This story concerned the case of a group of Jesuits who had come in contact with the black-and-white striped "American native" for the first time.

In attempting to describe the experience in a report to their European superiors, one of the Jesuits announced that, although he had no idea how to put down "the smell" in words, he had an idea it must have been quite a lot like that which confronted Saint Catherine of Siena whose mystical powers caused her to announce she had sensed the "smell of sin."

Dr. Bakeless—a man who has spent a lifetime digging into the past in one form or another—is a man with fine contemporary sense of humor, however.

This sense of humor has enabled him to spend years in doing on-the-spot research for a projected volume. He and his wife travelled a total 18,000 miles in preparation for his book on the Lewis and Clark expedition. Lewis and Clark themselves traveled only slightly over 4,000 miles.

The good doctor is often asked, by persons who have read his books, why it takes more time to write a book about something than it did to accomplish the feat in the first place.

Bakeless' answer to that one is simple. The man who set out to explore the Northwest, he will explain, did just that. He had a single-mindedness about him which kept him moving toward one goal.

The historian, however, sets out on the job with great patience—a quality he is going to need badly. While he is tracing that 4,000-mile journey he knows he will have to take endless "side trips" to local historical libraries (some as much as a thousand miles off the course) to check possible occurrences in that area. Then, when that check has been made (and many times it is fruitless) the writer backtracks.

An example of Dr. Bakeless' thoroughgoing attitude toward his own work—historical or literary—may be found in the fact that he spent 22 years doing research for his two volumes on Christopher Marlowe, the great Elizabethan playwright.

Marlowe's life lasted only 29 years in actuality.

The author's ability to do research, however, has not been without its rewards. His Marlowe volumes are recognized as the outstanding authority on that little-known writer. At least one of his later works—"The Eyes of Discovery," dealing with the subject discussed at Dutch Treat Thursday night—has established itself as a basic source-book on early American exploration.

Not content to ride along with a narrow talent, Dr. Bakeless is a man who excels in numerous fields.

During his lifetime he has been a newspaper reporter (on the Bloomsburg, Pa. Press where "they still throw copy at me when I walk in and yell—Proofread this!"), a professor of journalism, popular lecturer and an intelligence officer in the U. S. Army.

This latter position brought Bakeless some of his most colorful experiences. As he puts it: "I was an infantryman for 34 years. There are at least ten thousand other soldiers who can command a regiment as well as I can. So they finally transferred me out of the infantry and into intelligence."

Dr. Bakeless, who says "They let you out of the Pentagon for good behavior," was sent to Turkey during World War Two. There, he pulled a fast switch on his commanding officer, by notifying him by diplomatic pouch (instead of radio) that he was moving to Greece behind German lines to get some information.

The letter took three days to reach his superior. When it did, Dr. Bakeless and his associates were already on their way.

The trip later proved invaluable in its study of information on the Germans stationed in Greece. It also provided Dr. Bakeless with his first idea of how his books on Marlowe had been received in Marlowe's native Britain.

While in Greece, Bakeless and his party climbed a mountain for a closer look at German troop dispositions. In the party was a Britisher who had been an Oxford don before entering intelligence and the war.

During the course of conversation, it developed that the British officer was a specialist in archaeology. Bakeless, in turn, informed the man that he was a specialist on Christopher Marlowe.

"Well, now," the former Oxford professor exclaimed. "Isn't that a coincidence. Some damn fool has just written a two-volume book on Marlowe. My wife sent me a review of it last week."

Dr. Bakeless lost no time in explaining that the "damn fool" was himself. Thereupon the Britisher pulled out the review and the American author learned, for the first time, that a noted English critic (Sir John Squire) had given him an enthusiastic review.

As he sat on the top of the mountain, surrounded by Nazi troops whose officials had done everything in their power to prevent the shipment of German documental dissertations to America for the completion of his book, Dr. Bakeless had every right to indulge in an ironic chuckle.

It was an experience—a humorous one—which is indicative of Bakeless' own attitude toward his work and history. The research doesn't always come easy. As Dr. Bakeless puts it, only a few early explorers attached any importance to setting down a record of what they had seen during their explorations. Most of them were so dog-tired after a hard day's "padding a canoe" that it was all they could do to set down a simple entry in their diaries at night.

Most of them, when they reached their destination, opened the book and wrote only one sentence: "Arrived tonight."

Brief and concise though that may be, it isn't too much help to the historian who, three hundred years later, is trying desperately to find out how he got there.

Meeting Up With Skunks One Of Greatest Surprises That Greeted Pioneer Explorers

By Leonard Randolph

One of the outstanding discoveries made by early explorers on the North American continent was the lowly skunk.

This was the contention of Dr. John Bakeless, author of one of the most thorough and authoritative books ever published in this country about early American explorers, in an off-the-cuff address Thursday night before members of the Dutch Treat Club.

In an interview at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, where the dinner meeting was held, Dr. Bakeless pointed out that explorers who landed on the continent had several unpleasant surprises waiting for them as well as the overwhelming richness of the land, the abundance of game animals and a large supply of fruits and vegetables.

Early journals, according to the speaker, are liberally larded with the explorers' accounts of "first meetings with skunks" and their reactions to the animal.

Needless to say, most of the comments were strong. But then so is the power of the skunk—especially to the uninitiated.

Dr. Bakeless recalled one minor incident which he had turned over during years of research. This story concerned the case of a group of Jesuits who had come in contact with the black-and-white striped "American native" for the first time.

In attempting to describe the experience in a report to their European superiors, one of the Jesuits announced that, although he had no idea how to put down "the smell" in words, he had an idea it must have been quite a lot like that which confronted Saint Catherine of Sienna whose mystical powers caused her to announce she had sensed the "smell of sin".

Dr. Bakeless—a man who has spent a lifetime digging into the past in one form or another—is a man with fine contemporary sense of humor, however.

This sense of humor has enabled him to spend years in doing on-the-spot research for a projected volume. He and his wife travelled a total 18,000 miles in preparation for his book on the Lewis and Clark expedition. Lewis and Clark themselves traveled only slightly over 4,000 miles.

The good doctor is often asked, by persons who have read his books, why it takes more time to write a book about something than it did to accomplish the feat in the first place.

Bakeless' answer to that one is simple. The man who set out to explore the Northwest, he will explain, did just that. He had a single-mindedness about him

which kept him moving toward one goal.

The historian, however, sets out on the job with great patience—a quality he is going to need badly. While he is tracing that 4,000-mile journey he knows he will have to take endless "side trips" to local historical libraries (some as much as a thousand miles off the course) to check possible occurrences in that area. Then, when that check has been made (and many times it is fruitless) the writer backtracks.

An example of Dr. Bakeless' thoroughgoing attitude toward his own work—historical or literary—may be found in the fact that he spent 22 years doing research for his two volumes on Christopher Marlowe, the great Elizabethan playwright.

The author's ability to do research, however, has not been without its rewards. His Marlowe volumes are recognized as the outstanding authority on that little-known writer. At least one of his later works—"The Eyes of Discovery," dealing with the subject discussed at Dutch Treat Thursday night—has established itself as a basic source-book on early American exploration.

Not content to ride along with a narrow talent, Dr. Bakeless is a man who excels in numerous fields.

During his lifetime he has been a newspaper reporter (on the Bloomsburg, Pa. Press where "they still throw copy at me when I walk in and yell—Proofread this!") a professor of journalism, popular lecturer and an intelligence officer in the U. S. Army.

This latter position brought Bakeless some of his most colorful experiences. As he puts it: "I was an infantryman for 31 years. There are at least ten thousand other soldiers who can command a regiment as well as I can. So they finally transferred me out of the infantry and into intelligence."

Dr. Bakeless, who says "They let you out of the Pentagon for good behavior," was sent to Turkey during World War Two. There, he pulled a fast switch on his commanding officer, by notifying him by diplomatic pouch (instead of radio) that he was moving to Greece behind German lines to get some information.

The letter took three days to reach his superior. When it did, Dr. Bakeless and his associates were already on their way.

The trip later proved invaluable in its study of information on the Germans stationed in Greece. It also provided Dr. Bakeless with his first idea of how his books on Marlowe had been received in Marlowe's native Britain.

While in Greece, Bakeless and his party climbed a mountain for a closer look at German troop displacements. In the party was a Britisher who had been an Oxford don before entering intelligence and the war.

During the course of conversation, it developed that the British officer was a specialist in archaeology. Bakeless, in turn, informed the man that he was a specialist on Christopher Marlowe.

"Well, now," the former Oxford professor exclaimed. "Isn't that a coincidence. Some damn fool has just written a two-volume book on Marlowe. My wife sent me a review of it last week."

Dr. Bakeless lost no time in explaining that the "damn fool" was himself. Thereupon the Britisher pulled out the review and the American author learned, for the first time, that a noted English critic (Sir John Squire) had given him an enthusiastic review.

As he sat on the top of the mountain, surrounded by Nazi troops whose officials had done everything in their power to prevent the shipment of German doc-

She is a veteran of television and the stage and, what's more, she's married to a director. ## Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

If this deluge keeps up, maybe I'll stay in bed all day today. Christmas shopping? Oh well, if there's a flood there'll be no Christmas deliveries anyway.

Hungry family? Well, the hungriest members are back in the deer woods and there are always cans to open.

Do the ironing? Well, if it's waited ever since Monday afternoon it can wait a little longer, can't it?

Dusting? Don't be silly, in these days you can't even see where the dust is—so why bother.

Right now, there's nothing that seems quite so worthwhile and so pleasant to contemplate, as having the rain from the southeast drum a pleasant lullaby on the windows that we never did get around to putting up the storm windows, and on pulling the covers up high enough so it doesn't sound like a flourish of drums, just a dim keeping-time in the distance.

Time, which is a grim master on week-days, means nothing at all when you're dreaming. Why you can dream a whole novel from the time it takes your daughter to ask how to fry bacon and the time the smell of burning grease comes up the stairwell.

Hungry?—nope, just sleepy. The wedding? Oh my goodness sakes alive, clear the track and put my coffee on again, and bring back my wide petticoat, I'm on my way.

Listen To—Bobby Westbrook daily, Monday through Friday, on "The Party Line" WVPO, 10:15 a.m.

Rainy Day Visit With Violets At Heller Home

Nobody was singing "It isn't raining rain to me, it's raining violets," yesterday in this reporter's hearing, at any rate, but it might have been the theme song of Mrs. Paul V. Heller, 4 Broad St., Stroudsburg, who has 67 different varieties of African violets at her home.

Not Spring but Christmas is the theme of the current display she has arranged in her living room for friends. Three tables hold the prize plants in three tiers, with silver background bringing out the shades of lavender, pink, blue and purple which blend from plant to plant. Tiny Christmas scenes, and elves and goblins add to the festive atmosphere, with clusters of colored Christmas ornaments providing sharp contrast.

Mrs. Heller began her hobby some years ago during a long illness. A friend presented her with an African violet plant, and she thrived along with the violets. She has now branched out into creating her own varieties, through cross pollination. One of the three tables holds sixteen of these new varieties.

One of those, a double blossom with two colors, has been judged rare enough to register by a judge of the Trenton Flower Show who called on Mrs. Heller. Mrs. Heller's own current favorite, however, is a violet with leaf serrated like an oakleaf.

Mrs. Heller's green thumb? Well, it's partly enjoying working with the plants, and partly the fact that she feeds them a well-balanced diet, preparing and sterilizing her own earth mixture, and waters them well at three-day intervals, draining off the moisture they don't use in an hour, much the same as a puppy's food is removed when he stops eating.

So many Santa letters are piling into the store, that Letters to Santa will be brought to the children of Monroe County from Toyland this morning at 10:15 by Wyckoff's. Be sure to have your radios tuned to WVPO today, Kiddies, and to visit Wyckoff's in person to see Santa on his throne. He'll be here from 9:30 to 12, 1:30 to five, and 6:30 to 9 p.m. Do you wonder about decorating the dinner table for Christmas? Well, you needn't look any further than our domestics department with its beautiful and varied linens, and our housewares department with its elegant Fostoria glass in a brilliant shade of green. Many Hieman stocks this stemware in all beverage sizes, so may your holiday be both merry and bright! . . . For the musical minded child, what could be nicer than the accordion that sells for $2.98 in our Wyckoff Toyland! The keys actually move, and the rich, deep tones are the kind you rarely hear in a toy instrument. In a SQUEEZE, there's nothing—but nothing like an accordion! . . . I love those old fashioned alarm clocks that play "Hickory, Dickory Dock," and the bell that pops up to reveal a perky mouse gazing out blissfully unaware that the clock's face is a cat's head. I don't like mice, but this one's too cute to get the gong, and as a toy it's a delightful new version of Jack in the Box. . . . For a friend whom I love, but from whom I never hear frequently enough, the perfect gift seems to be a box of stationery. Wonder if she'd take the hint if I were to put a three-cent stamp on every envelope, AND my name and address? . . . If there are nylon more delicate than those in our lingerie and nighties, if there are colors softer and more glowing; if there are designs more feminine, I'd like to be convinced! Frankly, I think Edith Pennington has done a terrific job of stocking her department for the yule rush—and that's all the reason I need to explain why our lingerie department is so excitingly busy every year. . . . Rain is beating against the window pane and falling upon the silver Star of Bethlehem in the center of the giant Christmas wreaths. Whatever the weather, the lights of Christmas cast a glow over the world and over the hearts of all who behold them. Whether it comes "upon the midnight clear" or echoes, these many years later, over the stormy streets of a busy town, "that glorious song of old" is the most beautiful melody ever composed, with the grandest lyrics ever written. . . . Don't forget—Saturday is a wonderful day to see all your friends in Wyckoff's and get a lot of that shopping done. We're open until nine! . . . Mirror, mirror, on the wall, who's the fairest of them all? Maybe the mirror can't tell. But I know which is the most beautiful mirror of all! It's one of fabulous stock of all types of wall decorations, including pictures, purchased from a manufacturer—his entire sample line—going at wholesale prices. Buy a mirror for the lady of your choice. Let her know how lovely she is to look at—and how proud you are of her!

Civil Defense Authorities Discuss Preparations For County-Wide Alert Dec. 18

The zone, township and borough Civil Defense directors at their meeting at the office at the Court House Thursday night, discussed plans in connection with the all county alert which will take place Thursday, Dec. 18, at 10 p.m. Jack Anderson, the assistant director, presided.

The demonstration will be in charge of Judge Fred W. Davis, CD director for Monroe County. It was announced that the red alert will take place at 10 p.m., when sirens will be sounded all through the county. The all clear will be at approximately 10:05.

During the five minutes, all traffic is to be halted and citizens are requested to go in doors. All blinds in buildings are to be drawn. These regulations will not affect emergency traffic and authorized CD workers proceeding to their respective stations.

At the end of the first phase planes will fly theoretically to metropolitan areas where bombs have been dropped and bring out victims. It will probably be 10:30 when the evacuees begin to arrive, a disorganized group of people. It will be the job of the Monroe County CD workers to care for the sick and wounded and find shelters for as many of the homeless people as possible.

Five zone stations will be set up for the test which will consist of reception centers where clerks will have a list of people to be accommodated and also first aid stations.

The zone stations will be located at the following places:

First, Chestnut Hill High School, Brodheadville, Henry C. Hoffman, director, director first aid station, Mrs. Ann Shafer.

Second, Stroudsburg, VFW Home, Frank E. Weller, director; Mrs. Alberta Horn, first aid station director.

Third, Marshalls Creek fire house, Louis Caramella, director; Mrs. Bertha Smith, first aid director.

Fourth, Barrett Township High School, Marshall Reese, director; Miss Catherine Roff, first aid director.

Fifth, Tobyhanna High school, Pocono Lake, Claude Bush, director; Mrs. Sterling Wagner and Mrs. John Workheiser, co-directors first aid station.

An important step taken by the CD director was the appointment of a woman to contact fraternal, civic, veteran organizations, service clubs and women's groups to get citizens, not CD workers, to act as evacuees and stop at outposts where CD personnel will accompany them to first aid stations for attention.

Miss Dorothy Storms, of 85 Broad St., Stroudsburg, has been named the chairlady for this important duty of getting the voluntary evacuees. She works at the office of the Line Material Co. of East Stroudsburg. Her home phone number is 4019-J.

The new radio transmitter at the CD office at the Court House will be utilized during the alert under the direction of Ernest Transue, of WVPO.

All township and borough CD directors are being encouraged to develop additional plans for use during an alert in every area of the county.

Invitations have been extended to the state CD headquarters to send observers here to witness the results of the Dec. 18 all county alert.

daughter, of Allentown, enjoyed the Thanksgiving vacation period at their summer home here.

Princeton End On Associated Press All-American Squad

By Will Grimsley
New York (AP)—A pair of deadly passers, one of the nation's leading ground gainers and a triple threat star make up the attacking unit on the 1952 All-American football team named yesterday by The Associated Press.

In the brisk battle for the "glamor" roles on the 22-man, two-platoon squad, offensive backfield honors went to Billy Vessels of Oklahoma, Paul Giel of Minnesota, Don Heinrich of Washington and Jack Scarbath of Maryland.

Heinrich, breaking Pacific Coast records, was the nation's leading passer for the second year and shared throwing duties on the mythical team with Scarbath, the Terrapins' slick-handling T-quarterback.

Vessels, an 185-pound line-backer from Cleveland, rushed for 1,672 yards and scored 18 touchdowns. The versatile Giel piled up well over 1,300 yards passing, running and catching.

Rounding out the squad, picked on the recommendations of eight regional boards of sports writers and broadcasters, are an offensive line and a defensive platoon which feature size, speed and mobility.

Two are on the team for the second time. Marvin Matuszak, a 216-pound offensive guard from Tulsa, made last year's squad while Heinrich, out in 1951 because of injuries, was honored in 1950.

Playing with an up-and-down team, Heinrich completed 137 passes in 270 attempts and had a total offense of 1,652 yards for the season. Howie Odell, Washington coach, called him "the finest player I have coached."

Giel scored five touchdowns, threw passes for five others and caught a pass for an eleventh. He also distinguished himself as a blocker and punter.

Scarbath completed 59 of 113 passes for 1,140 yards and 10 touchdowns and also picked up three touchdowns on the ground. Vessels set a new Oklahoma record in rushing and also threw for two scores.

Two of the backs on the defensive squad, Johnny Lattner of Notre Dame and Jimmy Sears of Southern California, were double duty men. Lattner, called "the Irish 'bread and butter' runner," played both offense and defense. He gained 731 yards on the ground, scored five touchdowns and intercepted four passes. Sears at 167 pounds the smallest man on the squad, also played both ways—a triple threat tailback and a fine pass defender and punt returner. "The backbone of our team," said Coach Jess Hill.

Bobby Moorhead, a 170-pounder, sparked Georgia Tech's secondary defense, one of the nation's best, with seven pass interceptions and more than a score of unassisted tackles. "Moorhead came into his own this season," said Tech Coach Bobby Dodd.

The important linebacking jobs went to Michigan State's Richard Tamburo, a 180-pounder from Kensington, Pa., and Donn Moorman, UCLA's 222-pound diagnostician from Santa Ana, Calif.

Coach Biggie Munn of Michigan State labelled Tamburo: "About the best defensive player I have ever seen." UCLA's Coach "Red" Sanders called Moorman: "Truly an All-American."

The offensive ends are Texas' Tom Stohlhandske, who coach Ed Price said "is everything you can expect of an end," and Frank McPhee, Princeton's two-way player termed by Coach Charley Caldwell "the greatest all-around player I have ever coached."

Completing the offensive line are Mississippi's Kline Gilbert, 215, and Wisconsin's David Suminski, 198, at tackles; Tennessee's John Michels and Tulsa's Matuszak at guards and Georgia Tech's Pete Brown at center.

Offense

Don Brandy of Colorado and Tom Scott of Virginia, both towering seniors, flank the defensive line. The tackles are J. D. Kimmell of Houston, 230, also a former West Pointer, and Charlie LaPrade of Florida, 215. The guards are Frank Kush from Windber, Pa., of Michigan State, 180, and Steve Eisenhauer of Navy, 200.

Ends—Bernard Flowers, Purdue, and Harry Babcock, Georgia. Tackles—Ben Dunkerley, West Virginia, and Eldred Kraemer, Pittsburgh.

Guards—Harley Sewell, Texas, and James Reichbach, Ohio State.

Center—James Dooley, Penn State.

Backs—Johnny Olszewski, California; Andy Kozar, Tennessee; Bobby Marlow, Alabama, and Ed Mioduszewski, William and Mary.

Defense

Ends—Ed Bell, Penn, and Ed Luke, Michigan State.

Tackles—Ed Meadows, Duke, and William Skynskus, Syracuse.

Guards—Elmer Willhoite,

Southern Cal, and Chester Millett, Holy Cross.

Linebackers—Tom Catlin, Oklahoma, and George Morris, Georgia Tech.

Backs—Val Joe Walker, Southern Methodist; Norris Mullis, South Carolina, and Gilbert Reich, Kansas.

The honorable mention list included from Pennsylvania: Ends—Jesse Arnette, Penn State.

Tackles—William Haggerty, Villanova; John Shanafelt, Penn. Linebackers—Joe Schmidt, Pitt; Pete Schoderbek, Penn State.

Backs—Gene Filipski, Villanova; Robert Haner, Villanova; Brad Meyers, Bucknell.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

An official check of the gate at the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg football game held on Thanksgiving Day reveals that the paid admission may not have been any larger than in the past, but it certainly was the best financial gate in the football series between the two arch rivals. A total of 2,844 people were charged admission, which brought the gross receipts to $2,730.70, or a new high in that department.

According to Lewis Hastie, faculty athletic manager at East Stroudsburg High, the expenses for the game ran to $170.35. This means the net take at the game was $2,560.35 and each school was rewarded with a financial gain of $1,280.18, or enough to probably balance the football budget and even add a little margin for working next season at the respective schools. There was a total of 1,622 student tickets sold prior to the game, 720 adults and 1,102 adult reserved seats.

The original estimate of the crowd included all people at the game, regardless of complimentary or paid admissions. However, the estimate was too high, as the crowd in total would have to be stretched to reach the 4,000 mark. Each band received complimentary tickets of course, and each took up 126 seats in the main grandstand. A total of 40 complimentary tickets were given to each school, to cover school officials and members of the school boards. Each member of the faculty of the two schools was admitted free, bringing the round figure number of complimentary admissions to something like 532 people.

However, considering all angles, there was never a football game played in this area that so completely thrilled the crowds of both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg. The contest was outstanding financially, but money could never purchase the terrific brand of football and sportsmanship shown on the field. The largest intake by the two schools previously was last year, when each received $771 as its portion of the gate at Gordon Heights field.

There has been a debate around Stroudsburg in recent weeks as to when Stroudsburg played Taylor High School, and in an effort to settle the discussion the back files were handled firmly, but gently, last night, until they revealed that the two high school grid machines clashed on Friday, September 19, 1941, at what is now Gordon Heights field. Taylor won the game, played at night, by the slim margin of 2-0.

Stroudsburg and Taylor battled on even terms throughout the ball game, before "Frenchy" Catudal, running out of the fullback post, was tackled in the endzone for a safety late in the fourth quarter. According to the back files, the game ended one play later. Catudal had raced 50 yards earlier in the final period, after taking a lateral from Al Bachman, for the longest run of the game. Taylor served as a substitute for the originally scheduled game with Bangor on the 1941 date, due to an outbreak of infantile paralysis in areas surrounding Bangor.

Jack McAndrews, a member of the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College basketball team, will probably be among the missing when the Warriors tangle with Millersville on Saturday, on the Normal Hill court. Jack is currently out of action with a reported case of virus. Bob Stuhl, former Wilson Borough High great, who was forced out of athletics for a year because of illness, is now a member of the ESSTC junior varsity contingent. Wilson High scrimmages against Stroudsburg High's varsity this morning, on the W. Main St. court.

Hewitt Leads Mauch Chunk To Cage Verdict Over Polk, 85-38

Mauch Chunk—A highly regarded Mauch Chunk High School cage machine rolled over Polk High, a Monroe County League entry, here on the winning team's home floor last night, 85-38. It was the first loss of the season for Polk after the charges of Coach Art Smith had defeated the Alumni in the opening game of the campaign.

Bob Hewitt, towering center, was the difference in the two teams, as the Mauch Chunk cage handled the ball like a pea and shot it with radar-like accuracy, while piling up 34 points on 14 goals from the floor and six from the charity line.

Early Deficit

Polk, using only five players throughout the contest, trailed at the end of the first period, 27-4 and at halftime, 45-16.

Mauch Chunk continued to hold the upper hand in the second half, gaining a 16-11 advantage in the third period and holding a 24-11 edge during the final eight minutes of action.

Robinson To Quit After Fight

Boston (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson yesterday said that "win or lose" he would retire from boxing after defending his middleweight title against Randy Turpin in London or Dublin next June.

"I want to cross the ocean again to fight Turpin once more and then call it quits," said Robinson, who will star in a night club show here next week.

Coolbaugh Decisions Milford, 46-38

Early Lead Decides Issue Of Court Tilt

Tobyhanna — Coolbaugh High thrilled the home town fans with a convincing 46-38 victory over Milford High here on the winning contingent's home court last night. The basketball victory enabled the green and white clad charges of Coach Don Wismer to even their 1952-1953 record at one victory and the same number of setbacks.

Coolbaugh, preparing for the Monroe County League flag race, jumped off with 13 points in the opening round, while Milford could account for only six tallies. Coolbaugh never relinquished the upper hand, although outscored in the final period.

The home town forces held a 14-11 edge in the second period and led at the halfway mark by a 27-17 mark.

Coolbaugh, using only six players, continued to add to its lead with an 11-9 edge in the third quarter to enter the final round on the long end of a 38-26 score.

Rally Fails

Milford had the better of the going in the last eight minutes, 12-8, but the outcome of the game was never in doubt.

The host team made good on 12 of 29 shots from the foul line. While Milford rang the bell from the same distance on 14 of 32 occasions. There were a total of 61 foul shots awarded during the course of the contest.

Milford saved some face with a 21-12 victory in the junior varsity encounter.

Saigh Wins TV Round

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP)—Fred Saigh won the first round in his bitter struggle about baseball television rights yesterday when the St. Louis Cardinal owner signed a reciprocal agreement with the Chicago Cubs for a "substantial" share of TV receipts when the Cards play at Chicago.

"I consider this a signal victory," said Saigh. "This is the opening wedge. Most important is the recognition of property right in TV for a visiting club. We provide half the talent. Why shouldn't we share in the revenue?"

No Comment

Saigh and Jimmy Gallagher, Cubs general manager, refused to say how much the Cards will get. But Saigh admitted it was a substantial percentage of the money paid for TV rights. He originally had asked for 40 per cent.

Obviously pleased with his success, Saigh said, "from now on Cardinal games will not be seen on television unless the club shares in the revenue. This agreement is a far reaching thing if the fees of the present are a sample of what to expect in the future."

Harrison Holds Commanding Lead

Havana (AP)—"Dutch" Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., took a commanding lead yesterday in the Havana Invitation Open Golf tournament by firing a third round 68 for a 54-hole total of 201.

Well Ahead

This put him well ahead of the field with one more round of 18 to be played today.

EAST STROUDSBURG
RESERVOIR PROPERTY

ESSTC Opens Season Today

Millersville To Invade Normal Hill

A new coach and an East Stroudsburg State Teachers College basketball team will launch the 1952-1953 season on the Normal Hill court today, with an annually strong Millersville State Teachers College quintet providing the opposition. The first of 16 games to be played by the Warriors will get underway at approximately 8:15 p.m.

Coach Chris Denis will make his debut as coach of the ESSTC cage contingent tonight, with many new members of the squad in the same role as their coach.

Joe Maioriello, a mainstay of the ESSTC cage machine for the past three years, is the only senior on the starting squad. Maioriello is five feet, nine inches tall.

Ray Steele, a product of East Stroudsburg High, is currently holding down the first string center berth, although only a freshman. Steele, the main cog in East-Sburg's lineup last season, is six feet, four inches tall.

Ed Palmer, another holdover from last season, will team with Maioriello at the forward berths.

Guards

Ray Kaseman, who demonstrated plenty of polish against Moravian in the first of two practice games, will handle one guard position, while Tony Black, another member of last year's club, takes care of the other defensive guard post.

Kaseman is a five-foot, 11 inch sophomore, while Black is a junior, standing six feet, one inch tall.

Other members of the squad who are ready to enter the game at anytime tonight are Bill Alexander and Gerald "Andy" Anderson, both members of last season's contingent, plus newcomers John Sloan, Tom Davis, Nick Gatto, Dave Lutz, John Miles, Tom Slayback and George Clarke.

A preliminary tussle between the ESSTC junior varsity and Kleckner's Rockets is carded for 7 p.m.

Bangor Turns Alumni Foe Into Second Straight Victim, 47-36

Bangor—Jim Rowlands and Garry Wynne led the Bangor High cage machine to its second straight victory of the infant basketball campaign last night, as the pupils of Coach John Heard took the measure of the Alumni, 47-36 here on the high school court. The scholastic five held the upper hand throughout the ball game, although outscored in the second quarter.

Deadlock

The two contingents were deadlocked at 20-20 at the halfway mark.

Bangor did the bulk of its damage in the second half, gaining a seven-point edge in the third quarter and a four-point advantage in the final period.

TTHS Uses Foul Shooting Ability To Win

Pocono Pines—Tobyhanna Township High, king of the Monroe County League for the past three years, used its foul shooting ability to take the measure of the Stroudsburg High junior varsity last night, 69-48, before the home crowd. The win was the first of the season for TTHS, who lost to White Haven in the opening game of the campaign.

Stroudsburg Junior High captured the preliminary tussle by a 31-17 margin over the TTHS junior varsity.

Singletons

TTHS found the range on 33 of 51 shots from the foul line, in a game that found a total of 67 shots being awarded from the free throw mark. This margin was the difference between victory and defeat for the maroon and gold clad charges of Coach Carl Majer, as the Stroudsburg had the better of the field goal production, 22-18.

Dick Fischer was the number one boy from the charity line, making nine of 16 tosses. However, high scoring honors went to Bob Miller and Fred Blakeslee with 22 and 18 tallies respectively. Don Diebler and Jack Whittle were the big guns in a losing cause, with 18 and 11 markers respectively.

Browns Show Big Fan Gain

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP)—The American League yesterday announced an official attendance of 8,293,896 for 1952, representing a decrease of 6.6 per cent or 588,778 from 1951. Some 44 per cent of the attendance came from the league's 265 night games.

Although the world champion New York Yankees once more topped the league with a home draw of 1,629,665, the Yankees' decrease of 320,442 was the highest in the league. Cleveland, second

Robinson Listed For Title Bout With Turpin In London

By Murray Rose

New York, (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson said yesterday he is not retiring and his manager announced the champion will defend his middleweight title against England's Randy Turpin in London this June.

Manager George Gainford made the announcement of the planned title bout in Boston after the New York State Athletic Commission, in a startling move, declared Robinson's title vacant.

Later, the commission just about reversed itself and said, in effect, that if the champ really means to fight Turpin, then he'll get back his title recognition.

After talking to Gainford twice on the long distance telephone, Commission Chairman Bob Christenberry said "If Gainford can present documentary evidence of the Turpin-Robinson fight, we'll take the proper action."

After belatedly receiving a letter from Gainford yesterday afternoon which explained that he was negotiating for a bout with Turpin, the commission replied to Gainford by letter:

Answer

"We failed to find anywhere in your letter any assurance that Sugar Ray Robinson has consummated any binding agreement to defend his title. In the event you desire to furnish this commission with concrete evidence that you have arranged a title match, satisfactory to this commission, you may appear before the commission on December 19, to petition for a review of our action vacating Robinson's title."

Christenberry, and his two commissioners, Dr. C. B. Powell and Leon Swears, can take action for New York only, of course. In Minneapolis, George Barton, president of the National Boxing Association, said Robinson's defense against Turpin in London next June "is good enough for the NBA."

Athletic Group To Support NCAA

Chicago, (AP)—Inter-state Intercollegiate Athletic Conference yesterday went on record as favoring any 1953 football television policy drafted by the NCAA at its annual convention next month.

Transfer Rule
The league clarified its one-year transfer rule, specifying that if a student plays in one intercollegiate contest at one school before transferring to another, he still is ineligible for a year.
